Tinker Bell

I'm teen
Tinker Bell

Once upon a time...

Many years ago, in a magical and enchanted land, fairies like me and pirates and witches and princesses-to-be were teenagers and we attended the most magical school of all – Fairy Tale High. They said it was a place where dreams begin, and that was so true. I am still friends with my Fairy Tale High classmates – the nicest ones, at least – including Cinderella, Snow White, Rapunzel, Belle, Alice, Beauty, M (that's Little Mermaid, you know) Peter Pan and even Pinocchio!

Come learn about our school and the stuff my friends and I did at Fairy Tale High in this diary I kept way back when. But first, a sprinkling of fairy dust...plifff!

Sunday - The last day of summer vacation

Dear Diary,

I am so happy to be starting school again tomorrow. I'll be a sophomore this year, which means more privileges than we got last year as freshmen. Sugar Plum and I spent the whole summer working on songs for our band, the Pixie Chicks, and practicing, practicing, practicing. We haven't played the new stuff for anyone yet, but it sounds pretty good so I can't wait to hear what my friends think. My singing's gotten way better and Plum is kicking some serious wing on the electric bass.

I don't know why I have the back-to-school jitters. Maybe it's the Battle of the Bands concert this year. I really want the Pixie Chicks to make the cut and get to perform.

Dream big, that's what I say.

Nighty-night. Plifff!

Monday - Sophomore Year

Dear Diary,

It felt good to fly through the halls with my friends again at school. Summer was fun, but I really missed Fairy Tale High. I was happy to sign up for all the classes I didn't get to take last year--especially the ones that are not open to freshmen, like vocal strategies, which teaches you how to do special things with your singing voice.

I also passed the advanced placement test for computer science, which means I get to skip ahead a few grades in that subject. I'm psyched! How cool is that? Very!

(more)

Pinocchio has already started bugging me about signing up to do the school paper with him again. He said I had to because there was going to be a Goden Orb award for school papers this year – then his nose started getting longer so I knew he was fibbing. It was fun last year, but I think I'd really like to try something new.

(more)

I also made a new friend. Her name is Alice. I remember her from the auditions for prospective students last year, when I was the student volunteer. I am happy to be able to show her around.

Tuesday - Sophomore Year

Dear Diary,

I did something in computer class today that I guess amazed the teacher, although it didn't really seem like a big deal to me. We were using this old-fashioned overhead projector to view pictures of computer parts. The pictures we wanted to look at were on a computer. The teacher was printing out each picture and putting the print-outs on the projector so we could see them really big on the wall screen.

I thought it would make things easier if the computer were hooked up to the projector. That way the teacher wouldn't have to print anything out. We could just click from one image to the next. So I went ahead and hooked the computer to the projector.

The professor was impressed and asked me to demonstrate how I did it in front of the whole class. I was pretty nervous. (It's funny how I can be so comfortable when I'm singing on stage in front of a hundred strangers and then so terrified to speak to 19 kids in a classroom.) I collected my nerve and stood up.

"I really don't know how I did it," I told the class. "I just moved a few wires around and pushed a couple of buttons without really thinking."

(more)

The class laughed, but in a good way. They all thought I was really smart, which embarrassed me a little, but not too much. I still don't know everyone's name in the class, because they are all seniors that I am only a sophomore.

Wednesday - Sophomore Year

After school, today, I was ready to wing my way home when I saw Alice trying to fix her bike. I'm more of a computer fixer than a gear head, but thought I might be able to help. Then another girl came over and before we knew it she had a whole tool kit and her chauffeur (that's French for driver) with her. Her name is Belle and she seems totally nice.

(more)

We got the bike fixed, and then Belle offered us a ride home in her limousine, which is just a fancy word for super long car. The driver – she calls him Mr. T. – put Alice's bike in the car and there was still plenty of room for all of us…and my wings. The car was pretty fancy, and there was even a refrigerator in it, two televisions and a rocking CD player. We played our favorite song – "Purple Reign" – and had a blast. They're so cool…even if they are only freshmen.

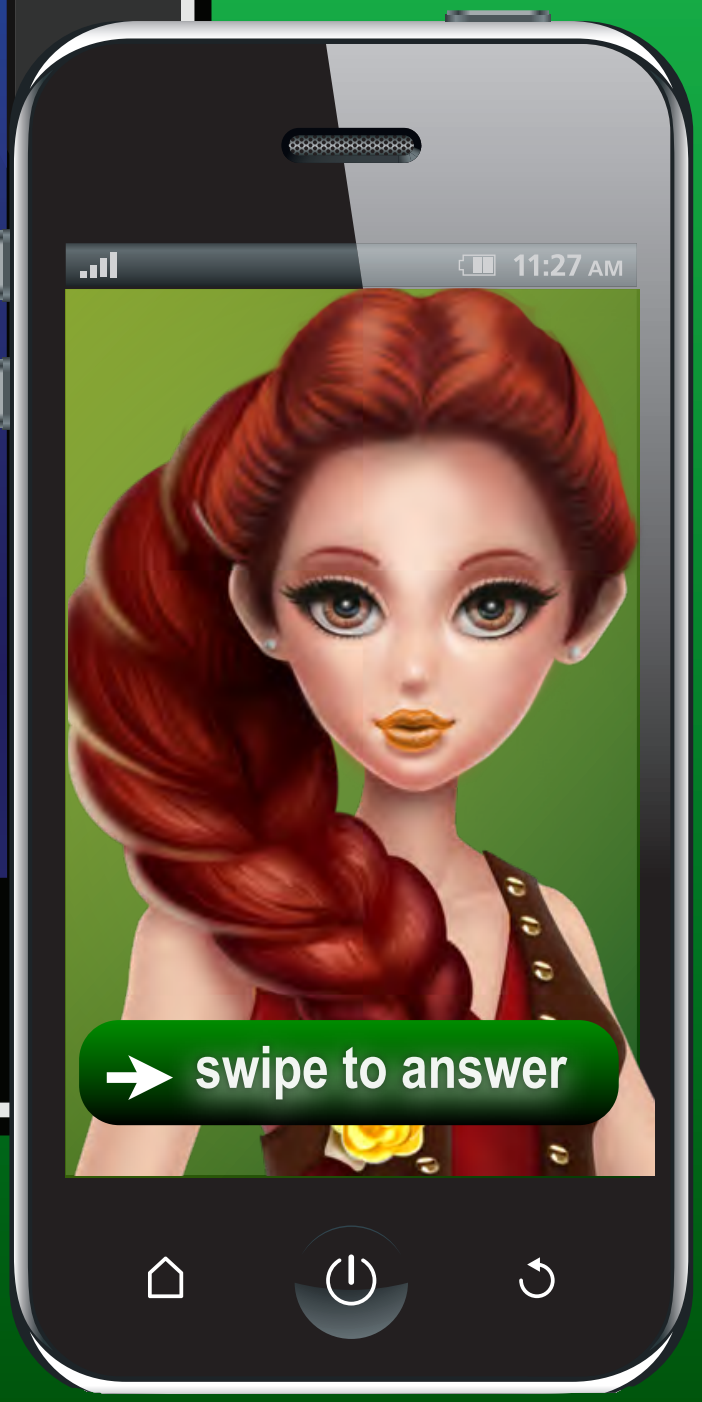
...even if



Hi Tinker Bell. Just wanted to say it was awesome meeting you today. Hope we can hang out soon. Bye!

Thursday - Sophomore Year

Team try-outs were today after school. I tried out for gymnastics. I had a hard time on the balance beam. I was so tempted to sprinkle myself with fairy dust to keep myself from falling, but I would never use my magic to cheat. I think my wings helped me balance, though. And they helped me catch air on the vault. But when it came to the uneven bars, well, let's just say I got a little caught up in things.

(more)

We also got to sign up for school clubs today. The sign-up sheets will be up until a club fills up. Snow White's name was first on every list – she must've been waiting for them to be posted. This year I have decided to join the puppet club. In the puppet club, kids do performances with puppets. Not little finger puppets, but great big life-sized puppets. After seeing the performance they did at the end of last year, I knew I wanted to be part of it this year. It was a show they wrote themselves and all the music was played by kids in the Fairy Tale High orchestra.

It opened with this crazy glow-in-the-dark neon dance number where the puppets came down towards the audience as if they were asking us to dance. The kids working the puppets seemed to become one with their puppet characters -- it was way more exciting than I thought a puppet show could ever be.

It was pretty amazing how they brought the puppets to life. So much skill is needed to just work one arm. In puppet club you don't just learn how to puppeteer, you get to build puppets too. I am already getting puppet ideas.

I'm still trying to decide between the school paper and something new. Alice said she's going to sign up for the chess club, and that sounds like fun. Decisions, decisions.

Dear Diary,

Hot news! The Werewolves will be here in a few weeks. I was so busy rehearsing with the Pixie Chicks over the summer that I barely had time to spend any of my allowance, so I'm ready when the tickets go on sale. Maybe I'll get a concert tee shirt, too!

I can't wait to go to the concert
