“With a story brewing in their head, searching for ideas, and in desperate need for a cure for writer’s block, Whynn Westwood is their town’s resident writer. Amatur author of all sorts of fiction and potential nonfiction, one is never far from finding Whynn snooping out their next bout of inspiration!”

Physical Appearance

Height: 5'4

Weight: IDK (lighter than normal)

Hair: Purple

Eyes: Dark Brown/Black

Whynn stands at an average height, though with how often they slouch, it might seem a bit shorter.

Their short, dark purple hair is long enough to be tied back in a small ponytail, revealing shaved sides on their head. They have an asymmetrical bangs style that sometimes switches sides, along with green strands of hair that frame their face. Their hair floats slightly when experiencing positive emotions.

They have dark brown eyes (borderline black) and glasses that never leave their face, lest they cry out "I can't see!"

They have blue skin and slightly pointed ears. Their voice is described to be feminine yet deep, though it has been known to pitch higher during extreme emotional moments.

They're often seen wearing a jacket around their shoulders when not in use. They're also seen wearing layers of clothing, like a short-sleeve with a long-sleeve underneath. A red scarf is commonly seen wrapped around their neck, perfect for them to bury their face in.

Deposition: Introvert

Creative X Jealous X Whimsical X Scatterbrained X Passionate X Anxious

By: retroiso / aroarachnid (both Tumblr)

Whynn is considered, by all means, quiet. They're often described to be in their own world, scribbling away in a journal and jumping slightly when questions are directed toward them.

When someone first meets Whynn, they're aloof, always looking for a way out of the conversation if at all possible. They're a bit polite for that though, so they often stay for longer than necessary.

However, as one gets to know Whynn, what's revealed is a colorful world brewing in their head. A world of adventure, peace, drama, romance? Possible bloodshed! The roads to the end of the many stories in their head are endless. They're bursting at the seams!

If one allows themselves to get closer to Whynn, be prepared for random infodumps of character concepts, worldbuilding, and relationships that they're excited to write and share.

Of course, not all is sunshine and rainbows. Writing to Whynn is a craft that they built up, and a craft that requires undisturbed time. Desire to have an easier and more visual craft sometimes builds up on bad days, which often morphs into strong doubt over their craft.

Best Trait: Whynn's best trait has got to be the way that they're able to come up with ideas that seemingly make little sense as to how they appear, but they can make them work. Somehow...just give them some time.

Fatal Flaw: Doubt. The ever-creeping doubt over everything can make them freeze in their tracks and cause them to backtrack on everything.

Other Notes

- When underneath extreme emotions, a dark cloud akin to smoke starts to form around Whynn's head. This is often seen when Whynn is mostly experiencing negative emotions, such as strong internal incompetence and anger. When in this state, Whynn is unable to speak properly and is left to communicate via writing or vague cloud emotions (e.g. question marks and exclamation points).
- Whynn can float when experiencing positive emotions. This is a mostly unconscious effect, but with effort they can float whenever they want to.

Relationships

Zephyr Westwood

Zephyr is Whynn's 7 year old cousin (height estimated to be 4'2) whom Whynn has guardianship over. The reasons for that aren't well known, but Whynn mentions it to be along the lines of "Zephyr's parents didn't want them anymore."

Zephyr has a lighter blue color than the writer and is thought to share Whynn's dark eyes and nose shape. However, they have white, cloud-like hair that moves in accordance with their emotions. They are stated to also have the ability to float (though this was noted to be more "at will" rather than "when experiencing positive emotions").

Zephyr is described to be curious and joyful, though they may have inherited Whynn's shyness due to a sketch of Zephyr hiding behind Whynn. Zephyr is thought to have also inherited Whynn's love for layers, as they're often drawn in sweaters and overalls.

AT-1225

AT-1225 is a conductor of trains and a traveler to many places. With each visit to Whynn's town, the robot brings back more stories from beings far away. To Whynn's initial discomfort and potential envy, AT-1225 seemed unashamed when sharing stories and seemed like such a better storyteller than they were.

Zephyr was the one who started increasing the frequency of which the two met up, claiming that "Ironhorse is super cool and I'm friends with a train! So that means that I gotta be the one to go to it!"

This "forced" proximity allowed Whynn and AT-1225 to try to get to know each other a bit better. Whynn didn't admit to anyone at first, least of all themselves, but they enjoyed the other's presence.

It was nice to talk to AT-1225.

And AT-1225 said that it was nice to talk to the writer as well.

Backstory

Whynn prefers to keep their childhood under wraps. Yes, they acknowledge it's an influential period, but that doesn't mean that they're going to spill everything to a stranger upon first meeting them.

Slowly picking at it would reveal that they're an only child in a rather big family. Most of their relatives are successful beings, so they were raised with the pressure of becoming as successful as they were. This didn't do wonders for their personal expectations and caused them to crumble into heavy doubt and discontent over their own sense of accomplishments and self for at least a decade.

When Whynn caught news of one of their baby cousins being given up for adoption (the reasons for that exactly are buried; they refuse to share exactly what they overheard and collected), they stepped in.

Someone needed to love this family of theirs, so maybe they could.

After guardianship was passed to them, they decided to move out.

Their new place of residence is quieter, and their neighbors are kind. Whynn stated that they arrived for fresh air and a new place to write. They would offhandedly mention some things in passing, like being from a place "northwest from here."

"Oh, my parents would never—" "Why didn't anyone tell me this was how things are done here? Now I look — and feel! — like an utter fool!"

Based on how they often wear layers, and how they don't seem to complain much when the weather gets chilly, it's assumed that they came from a cooler environment.
