

Taye (he/him - omni with a preference for men):

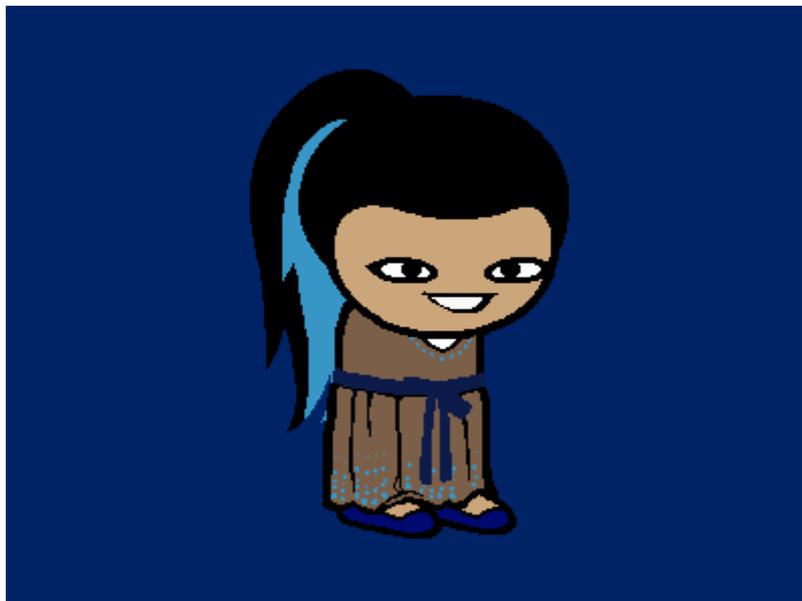

- Thief of Hope
- Thieves steal/redistribute their or with their aspect for themselves
- Hope is the aspect of positivity, acceptance, belief, euphoria, sexuality, and hope itself
- Thieves are naturally confident with their aspect, but hate being seen as weak.
- Taye gets power from other people believing in him, making him even more optimistic
- Taye's optimism comes from stealing others' confidence though, so he often leaves people feeling unconfident
- Taye has natural confidence in his ability to romantically attract people, but pushes down all feelings of doubt deep deep DEEP down
- Taye's remarkable ability to believe in things makes his pulchritude VERY high and his magic ability extremely impressive
- An exaggerated version of Raye's meta-ness, while Raye just makes references to other forms of media and the webcomic he resides and uses that fact to his advantage (4th wall breaking), Taye's judgement is entirely dependent on being meta (what would protagonist in book I like do?)
- Trans man
- A running gag of his is that he often accidentally makes backhanded compliments at people (stealing their confidence!)
- Taye's interests: Magic, using a gun that will be used later (Chekhov's gun), using said gun for no reason (red herring), simple explanations (Occam's Razor), alluding to things he's about to do (foreshadowing), finding loopholes (quibble), pursuing someone he knows someone else is pursuing (love triangle), having all of his interests be narrative techniques/plot devices, meta-irony, his ancestor (post-scratch Raye), skateboarding
- Land of Urns and Caesium
- Strife-Specibus: Pistol-kind and Wand-kind (Calliope reference!)
- Fetch-Modus: Array Modus
Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Referencing Raye's and John's sylladex in a double meta combo
- Derse dreamer
- griftingTenacity (GT)

"i landed on my hip and busted my lip! for a week i had to talk with a lisp like vipixe!"

Tina (she/her - pan):

- Sylph of Doom
- Sylphs passively create and heal their aspect or with their aspect for others
- Doom is the aspect of rules, acceptance, equality, negativity, death, decreasing, and doom itself
- Sylphs are heavily opinionated on their aspect, and try to create or fix instances of it
- Tina is heavily opinionated on rules, she's a very methodical person and dislikes when things are done in ways she sees as wrong
- Tina heavily advised against starting this session due to her cautious nature
- Her personality is an exaggerated version of Tony's, Tony shuts people down because they really doesn't care about their opinion, Tina shuts people down because she really cares about their opinion
- Tina often criticizes Taye due to his blind optimism and overwillingness to believe people, although she only does this because she cares (mirroring Tony's constant ragging on Raye in order to make him a better leader)
- Tina makes fun of Taye for believing in magic and often tries to convince him to not believe in it to no avail
- Tina is very critical of Callum's pursuit of knowledge with reckless abandon, as she believes that he'll ruin his relationship with Taye
- Tina's interests: Eurogames (think Settlers of Catan), being serious, following rules, cool colors, putting down people for their own good, Wikipedia, Encyclopedia Britannica
- Land of Epitaphs and Sodium
- Strife-Specibus: Chain-kind
- Fetch-Modus: Prison Modus
- Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Whenever she puts an item into her sylladex, it takes a certain amount of time to retrieve it based off of Tina's idea of seriousness (less serious items = longer time in "prison")
- `tectonicConstraints` (TC)

"That is quite interesting, how about next time, you straight up don't do that?"

Cris (she/her - bi with a preference for women):

- Maid of Heart
- Maids actively create or create with their aspect
- Heart is the aspect of feelings, instincts, the inner self, romance, bias, and the soul
- Maids, along with Pages, are considered doormats in terms of classes, and often rely on other people to help them find their aspect
- Cris thinks that having a crush on somebody means just choosing them instead of being interested in them randomly
- Tina often tries to direct Cris in the right direction by placing down ground rules, which, unlike Taye, don't actually help her
- Cris is easily manipulated due to her trying to find opinions from other people (this is an inversion of Cruz's perceived objectivity)
- She gets into a lot of trouble with Taye due to his convincing nature
- She's the ectobiological child of post-scratch Cruz and post-scratch Kent (they started a kismesis in the future)
- Cris's interests: Geckos, rom-com movies, other people's ideas, not being seen as Callum's sister, fire, celebrities (she has a "crush" on all of them, even the controversial ones), talking to people, Community (TV show)
- Land of Virtue and Potassium
- Strife-Specibus: Flamethrower-kind
- Fetch-Modus: Reason Modus
- Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Cris must give a genuine reason as to why she needs to use the item she wants
- crusadingTorch (CT)

"die hard is a christmas movie, and i will die (hard) on that hill"

Fran (she/her - straight):

- Witch of Mind
- Witches actively manipulate their aspect
- Mind is the aspect of impartiality, intelligence, the outer self, reason, logic, and the brain
- Witches are a class, along with Knights that are most likely to be accused of "not playing the game right" or "cheating", which is true to an extent
- Fran doesn't really care for logic or reason so she manipulates it to her liking
- Fran is great at mindgames due to her being able to steer other people towards revealing their true reasons for doing things
- Trans woman
- She's in a semi-toxic relationship with Nash, she's manipulative, and he's passive, but for some reason they still love each other
- Tina doesn't really like Fran due to Fran's shunning of logic and the fact that she "isn't playing the game right"
- For this same reason, Taye and Fran are best friends due to Taye's blind optimism and Fran not caring about it (mirroring how Raye and Fred consider each other to be their best friend)
- Fran's interests: Literally any card game, messing with people, experimenting on rats, her boyfriend, poking fun at Tina, skateboarding, long-winded stories that Taye tells, nonsensical jokes, fighting
- Land of Catacombs and Rubidium
- Strife-Specibus: Crossbow-kind
- Fetch-Modus: Miracle-Modus
- Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Functionally the same as Gamzee's Sylladex, but Fran knows how to game it to always get the item she wants. She got it from Taye through a series of meta shenanigans.
- `cosmicalGamer` (CG)

"Do you guys think that aliens pee the same way we do?"

Callum (he/him - gay):

- Heir of Light
- Heirs passively manipulate their aspect
- Light is the aspect of knowledge, luck, heat, noise, and of course literal Light
- Heir actively seek out their aspect and are protected by it as well, meaning that Callum is ungodly lucky
- Unfortunately luck follows some logic, so he's never won anything against Fran
- Callum is always trying to find out the story of his ancestor (post-scratch Kent) and trying to prove that he is benevolent, much to the dismay of Taye
- Callum also has a bit of crush on Taye, which he can't really display as Taye doesn't like Callum (Taye stealing his confidence)
- He's technically Cris's brother as he's the ectobiological kid of post-scratch Kent and post-scratch Cruz
- His name references the Cherubs of Hom,estuck and the troll naming scheme with its six letters
- The tallest of the post-scratch kids, mirroring how Kent is the shortest of the pre-scratch kids, which is something that Taye and Raye don't let Kent forget
- Callum's interests: reading, summertime, his ancestor, any game that involves luck, being acknowledged by Cris, not arguing with Taye, Taye, capitalism
- Land of Sin and Lithium
- Strife-Specibus: Taser-kind (he knows that it's non-lethal, but he also knows that he's lucky enough to the point that it will be)
- Fetch-Modus: Verbose-Modus
- Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Callum must give the most verbose explanation of the object he wants to retrieve from his sylladex before he gets it
- academicTriumphant (AT)

"<my dad totally beat up your dad>"

Nash (any/all but is chill with being seen as a dude - doesn't care):

- Rogue of Rage
- Rogues passively steal or redistribute their aspect for others
- Rage is the aspect of defiance, skepticism, strong feelings, fear, revolutionism, and anger
- Rogues think that they aren't proficient in their aspect, which is almost always not true and just an internalized idea
- In Nash's case it would mean that he doesn't think he has the power to order people around, and that he's super passive
- This separates him from Cris as Cris actually is passive, but Nash only thinks he's passive, which means that his passivity with Fran doesn't come out of a place of malice, but out of a fixed mindset
- Nash kinda gave up on trying to change how passive he is, meaning that he's a pretty lazy person, but if you were to mention this to him he would absolutely go off on you (mirroring Nick's disdain for being criticized by people and listening to reason), after which he'll apologize a grillion times
- Nash is the only one who can truly stop Taye's blind optimism from being too much, but due to his dislike of criticizing people, he doesn't do anything, but after learning how to be less passive, he starts to Yang Taye's Yin
- Nash's interests: his girlfriend, anything that requires him to do nothing, scary movies (he likes to act tough when watching them), mediating arguments due to his lack of caring enough to take sides, clicker games (high number makes his brain happy), not caring, being careless, did I mention he doesn't care about stuff?
- Land of Mausoleums and Francium
- Strife-Specibus: Bomb-kind (he likes that the only effort is throwing it)
- Fetch-Modus: Bag-Modus
- Explanation of Fetch-Modus: Looks like any uncharacteristic bag, can hold a surprisingly large amount of items/cards in it, but Nash squanders this great sylladex by keeping it unorganized and only digging around in there
- chillArithmetician (CA)

"u don't hafta be gay to know that naruto & sasuke r da perfect couple"

Funny a/o Cute a/o Cool Character Quirks because I have nowhere else to put them:
