During the beginning of January, a strange anomaly was reported ██████████, Pennsylvania. Tall, lanky birds were spotted roaming through the streets and parks; attacking any pedestrian that caught their eyes. These birds were too, causing the disappearance of a child.

It is unknown where the child has been taken to.

Leaving behind a few stray feathers, the avians were caught and taken to the nearest ACC agency, where countless tests were conducted. The birds revealed quite an oddity, possessing anomalous DNA, constantly shifting and reshaping. Settling down, the rogue strands of genetic code revealed the birds to be a close relative of the Quetzalcoatlus northropi.

It is unknown if the DNA of this species was scanned erroneously, for the species of relation has been extinct for countless years, confirming the Agents' suspicion that the event was due to a space-time anomaly. However, do not be alarmed, for the remaining birds have been caught, and hopefully, will not send you into an interdimensional ripple.

What in God's name is happening to our world.. This cannot be coincidental..

We will be attaching a copy of a police sketch, picturing the strange avians.
