

ACC.

It has come to the ACC's attention that the USA has been plagued by all sorts of anomalies, including the so-called 'Pennsylvanian Avian Attack'. During the ACC's research on the abnormality in ██████████, Pennsylvania, another major report came from the border nearing the state of New York.

Two agents, who were taking the weekend off, visited the notorious ██████████ Falls during nighttime, reporting a strange occurrence. The agents recall watching as the water shifted rapidly, with many husks of dead fish slowly emerging as the waters changed hue to a dark red color. Quick to begin investigating, Agent ██████████ picked up a flask of the red water and took it for examination purposes.

While the incident happened around 3 AM, when the agents returned for further their investigation, the waters of the falls were back to their usual color, and the pile of fish husks and bones were too, mysteriously gone.

The Agents of the ACC urge all civilians visiting the area to report any sort of similar abnormality, as this anomaly could severely endanger the environment of the region.

Our group of scientists has returned with results, simply warning us that the 'red water' was actually blood, as confirmed by the appearance of erythrocytes, leukocytes and thrombocytes.

We have no idea what sort of creature or anomaly can turn water into blood, but we must keep this information from the public, lest we stir general panic.
